Terrain Profile

Oshima is the largest of the nine islands of the Izu Island Chains. The terrain is located at the foot of Mt. Mihara, which stands at the heart of the island. The entire terrain is covered with complex features created by lava from past eruptions of Mt. Mihara, making it one of the most complex terrains throughout Japan. The terrain consists of a forest area of shrubs with low runnability and low visibility, and a desert area with high runnability and high visibility. The ratio is approximately 1:3.

You can also spot a rich fishing ground nurtured by the Black Current from the terrain. We hope you will be able to enjoy the deep ultramarine ocean view. If you are lucky, you may encounter large sea-mammals such as whales and dolphins during your voyage. Please enjoy the surreal experience, from orienteering in the desert to the ocean and of course, sightseeing.
